CORN AND HOGS.

From carciulty conducted experiments by different persons, it has been ascertained that one bushel of corn will make little more that ten pounds of pork gross. Taking the result as a basis, the following deductions are made, which all farmers would do well to lay by for a convenient reference:

When corn sells at 12½ cents per bushel, pork costs 1½ cents a pound.
When corn costs 17 sents a bushel,

pork costs 2 cents a pound.
When coru costs 25 cents a bushel, pork costs 3 cents a pound.
When corn costs 33 cents a bushel, pork costs 4 cents a pound. When corn costs 50 cents a bushel, pork costs 5 cents a pound.

The following statement shows what the farmer realizes on his corn when sold in the shape of pork; When pork sells at 3 cents per pound, it brings 25 cents per bushel in corn.

When pork sells at 4 cents per pound, it brings 32 cents per bushel in corn.
When pork sells at 5 cents per pound, it brings 45 cents per bushel in corn.

THE BRAINS OF URIMINALS -Professo Benedict, of Vienna, has lately made some interesting researches into the subject of the characteristics of the subject of the characteristics of the brains of criminals. He bas, so far, ex, amined the brains of a xicen criminalse all of which, on comparison with thi. healthy brain, he finds to be abnormas Not only has ne found that these brain-deviate from the normal type, and approach toward that of lower animals, but he has been able to classify them, and with them the skulls in which they were contained, in three categories. These consist in: First, absence of symmetry between the two halves of the brain; second, an excessive obliquity of the anterior part of the brain or skullin fact, a continuation upward of what we term a sloping forehead; third, a distinct lessening of the posterior part of the skull in its long diameter, and with it a diminution in size of the posterior cerebral lobes, so that, as in the lower animals, they There is much ado about the wornout "played-out" ferry question, just as

> SOMNAMBULISM EXTRAORDINARY .- A somnambulism Extraordinary.—A family living in one of the large squares in the west end of Edinburg, Scotland, had until lately one of their daughters in residence at the Mornington Asylum as a patient. While sitting with the lamily the patient suddenly left the room, and proceeded hurriedly up stairs, entered her room, and locked the door. Her sister, who had followed her, and could not obtain entrance, fearing that some accident would follow. that some accident would follow, rushed out of the house, and was horri-fled to find her relative hanging from the ledge of the window by her hand. An alarm was raised, and a large crowd quickly gathered. A futile attempt was made to force the door of the room, and meantime Dr. Moxon got upon the ledge of the window of the story beneath. The uniortunate girl now managed to sup-port her leet by his hands, and this to a great extent relieved the strain on her arms. Sue was now thoroughly alive to her own danger, and was chaging to the window as if for life. She hung first by one hand and then by the other for not less then six or seven minutes. Some less then six or seven minutes. Some of the people drew from the house a large quantity of bedding, in order to break the fall of the poor girl, which seemed by this time inevitable. Amid terrible excitement she at last succumbed, and as she was falling the docor tilted her forward, an action only too uecessary, as a projection above the doorway stood in the way of the descent, and would have sent the unfortunate girl either upon the iron apikes or into the area below. As it was, she fell upon her side, sostaining no apparent injury, as she presently walked upstairs.

The wife of Samuel Kieffer, restring near Liebbach's mill, Ruscombmanor Township, about one mile from Fleetwood, Pa., killed a large chicken hawk the other day by main strength. Mrs. Kieffer, who is about sixty-five years of age, heard a noise among the chickens near the barn, and upon going out discovered a hawk perched upon an old rooster weighing about five pounds, and trying to carry the chantipleer into the act. Mrs. K. ran, with the intention of frightening off the hawk; but the latter snowed no inclination to enve, but persisted in holding on to the rooster with his claws and fluttering greatly. The old lady, not at all apprethe nive of danger, seized the hawk by the neck and strangled him. The hawk showed battle, and lacerated her hands with its claws in a terrible manner, but she clung on to the neck of the bird until life was extinct. The hawk measured five feet four inches from tip to tip the wings.

AN ELEPHANT UTILIZED .- It is seldom that in England elephant labor is utilized, but one instance occurred in London tue other day which is worthy of record. An omnibus was proceeding along a street which had lately been broken up, and was so heavily laden that the horses were unable to drag the load. Several of the passengers alighted and while the horses were endeavoring to get over the piece of ground, one of the elephants attached to Sanger's Amphitheater, under the charge of a keeper, passed along the road. Seeing the help-lessness of the horses, the keeper gave instructions to the elephant, who lowered his head, and, placing his forehead at the rear of the 'ous, pushed horses, whiche, and passengers beyond the obstacle which impened their progress. This was witnessed by a large number of persons, who loudly cheered the actors in this incident.—[Paris Letter.

A PERFECT HORSE .- One who is considered as authority in horse matters states that a perfect horse is one about Afteen and a balf or sixteen bands high; a lengthy arched neck; sharp pointed cars; a large, full hazel eye, broad between them; not too long broad between them; not too long atace, but a straight one; a large, open nostri, a strong under jaw to masticate his leod well, a good round body, a hig full chest, large around the girth, denoting pleasy of luag power; thin withers, and an animal standing erect on his lore legs. Such animals it should be the object of breeders to produce, and this requires both judgment and care.
